New Minister Welcomed by industry

The Urban Development Institute of Australia welcomes the appointment of Angus Taylor as Assistant Minister for Cities and Digital Transformation. He comes highly credentialed to the position.

Considering the Prime Minister's interest in cities policy, and Lucy Turnbull's background, moving the Cities portfolio into the Prime Minister's cluster will give it the direct link to the Prime Minister and his department that it needs.

“UDIA looks forward to working with the new Assistant Minister for Cities to ensure that Cities are at the forefront of all policy debate within the Coalition Cabinet,” said Michael Corcoran, National President.
